

Social Impact Fellows

Helping students learn how to make a difference

The Social Impact Fellows program encourages a systems-level view of how business functions work together to drive meaningful change—helping graduate students understand the full potential of business to create positive impact in the areas of Health, Climate, and Shared Prosperity.

Companies sponsor individual students who use defined criteria to complete coursework, participate in executive mentorship, engage in experiential learning activities, learn how to use AI for social good, and build the knowledge, confidence and networks needed for leadership across diverse business functions.

Students Receive

- Transformational Learning
Immersive coursework and real-world challenges
- Executive Mentorship
Guidance from leading industry executives
- Real-World Exposure
Hands-on engagement with sponsoring companies
- Career Support
$1,000 stipend for networking and professional development resources

Sponsors Receive

- Access to Top Talent
Connect with high-potential graduate students
- Colleague Engagement
Opportunities to involve your team in meaningful work
- Insightful Deliverables
Research, publishing, events, and networking output
- RBS Partnership
A lasting relationship with Rutgers Business School

Apply here

1 yr

Program Duration

One full year of immersive graduate learning

3

Impact Areas

Choose from Health, Climate, and Shared Prosperity

4

Engagement Types

Research, publishing, events, and networking

Supported by Management & Global Business (MGB)

📞 For more information, contact us at ricsi.director@business.rutgers.edu